Excerpt from Radiation From Intense Electron Beams Associated With the Cerenkov Mechanism Normally a charge or system of charges moving at constant velocity does not radiate electromagnetic energy, but if the velocity of the charge is greater than the velocity of light in a medium, radiation occurs. It is broad band; the intensity increases with frequency; and the propagation is confined to a cone, much like a shock wave in air. Equations (7) and(3) in a later section describe these results. In previous work we described theory and experiments showing that this mechanism produces microwaves from bunched electron beams, in addition to the usual optical radiation, as studied by Cerenkov and many others. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.
